

Lester Aldridge Welcomes New Real Estate Partner

Leading South Coast law firm Lester Aldridge is pleased to announce that Adam Corcoran has joined as a partner in the Real Estate team.

Adam has had twenty years' experience advising clients on a wide range of property matters. He joins the firm's established commercial real estate team based in Bournemouth.

Adam is experienced in the acquisition and sale of land and buildings, refinancing transactions as well as commercial landlord and tenant matters, acting for developers, charities, pension funds and others. Having run his own law firm previously he is ideally placed to understand the needs of his commercial business clients.

Adam said: "I am delighted to join the team at Lester Aldridge. The level of expertise and knowledge in the team is of an exceptionally high standard and I look forward to working with them and clients of the firm."

Commenting on the new appointment, Matthew Barrow, the firm's Managing Partner, said: "We are delighted that Adam has joined our Real Estate team. His skills bolster our real estate offering, for which we are already well-known locally for our excellent client service and sector-specific expertise."

Lester Aldridge's extensive real estate team is comprised of experienced commercial property solicitors spread across three offices in Bournemouth, London and Southampton. It includes recognised specialists in planning and environmental matters, development, construction and engineering, property litigation and real estate finance.